The Oracle

STETSON
HIGH SCHOOL

Randolph, Massachusetts - June, 1951

Dedication

IT is typical perhaps that at this hour of Graduation the prime emotion in our youthful hearts is an overwhelming sense of fulfillment. On the threshold of maturity, we regard our education as but the first step in a long and glittering path of success. For one brief moment of sustained sentiment, we pause and reflect upon the brilliant panorama of memories which is all that remains of our high school days.

Because we are young and eager to begin our life, we forget sometimes that this final moment of glory is not ours alone to covet. We are but mere reflections of a far greater accomplishment. For was it not our parents who gave us the implements with which to work, the strength to persevere, and the praise which prompted us to perfection? The magnitude of their gift to us can never be measured for it was meted out lavishly and without reservation. It is a completely selfless love which they have given to us—a love which has molded our character, strengthened our ideals, and embodied our happiness.

It is sad that we forget so soon the motivating force of all our joys. It is therefore meet that this chronicle of our days at Stetson High School should be dedicated to our parents. An inadequate gesture to be sure but oh, so sincere! It is then, dear parents, in humble appreciation for your love and inspiration that we dedicate this book.

New School

"As it was in the beginning

Is now

and ever shall be."

In all probability you know this man. His benign and good-humoured countenance is a familiar sight about the town. The question is, dear parents, "Do you really know him?" Are you aware of those thousand and one things which he has done for us, not in the name of a superintendent but in the name of a friend? In our humble tribute to him we have endeavored to tell him of our gratitude. Inadequate as it is we feel sure that it contains your sentiments also, for he has served us both so well.

Mr. Christiansen

THE aim of all great men is service—the desire to better the condition of society. The most beneficial way to do this is by educating all of the children of all of the people.

The role of Superintendent of Schools is not the role of a common man. He should have great power of thought and, what is more important, he should be able to understand the needs of children.

Randolph has been fortunate in having a man like Mr. Christiansen. We are more indebted to him than the average person would realize. Through his outstanding effort, his patience, his persistence, our schools are the equal of any city school—and, in many instances, in advance of them.

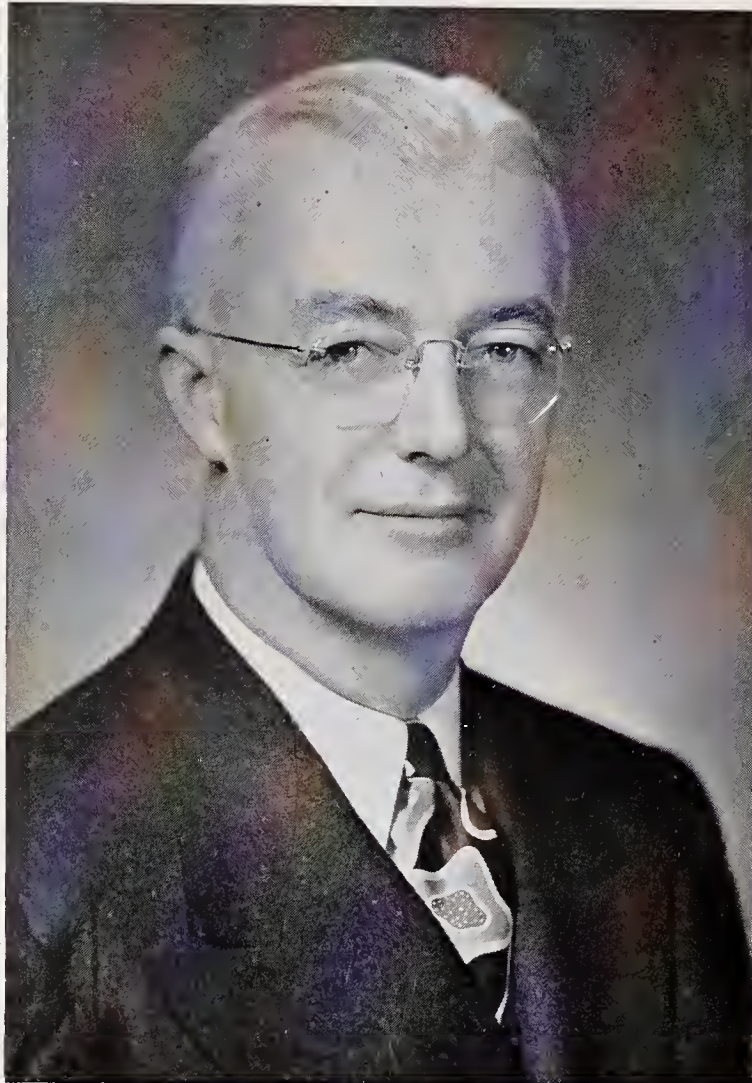

To be called "efficient" gratifies the ego—to be called a "friend" warms the heart—and to hundreds of children, this man is a friend. We'll forget—since it is the fashion of the times—of his educational farsightedness. But who is there among us but will remember the pencils with our very own names stamped upon them, the baseballs and jump ropes, the candy bars, the trips to the museums, and above all, his constant and sincere championing of the under-dog. We won't forget the kind, silver haired gentleman in the little gray Ford, who was always a welcoming sight to us.

Children seldom remember to say "Thank You." But, we are no longer children and so now, Mr. Christiansen, we are saying "Thank You." for every happy memory.

Mary Lou Barry '51

Note: After we went to press, Mr. Christiansen, because of ill health, resigned after thirty years of faithful service as Superintendent of Schools. He is succeeded by Mr. Reade, former principal of the Prescott School.

Dear Parents, we should like to introduce you to Mr. Hubert Gilgan, our principal, our "boss", our friend. As parents you have very much in common with this man, for he too shares an interest in our welfare. Together you have worked to improve our minds and personalities—together you have shared our disappointments and rejoiced in our happiness, so now it is fitting that together you should take a bow.

Mr. Gilgan

HE will stand there surveying us, in an attempt to be serious and critical—but failing miserably. We'll all see the kind twinkle in his eye and the smile that he is vainly trying to suppress. How often we have seen him like that—the amused, kind and wondrous expression on his face. We shall hesitate for a moment in a breathless silence, admiration quickening our hearts, catching in our throats and then welling into tears. It is then that we shall realize what we owe him and appreciate what he has done, but none will be able to put this debt of gratitude into words. No one will walk up to him, shake his hand and say "Thanks for the hours you gave me, the sympathy or encouragement"—but everyone will think of some individual encounter with this friend.

The only thanks he shall receive will be the tears that fall during the graduation exercises and the fond memories we carry of him down our divergent paths of glory. But Mr. Gilgan, the tears that fall shall not be mere sentiments of the surface, for they will spring from the hearts of each one of us—and whether fitting or not, they will be our greatest tribute to you.

—And here are our mentors, God Bless 'em! We thank them for their intelligence, their sense of humor but most of all for their patience. For after four years of educating the "not too bright class of '51," they have retained their sanity. Now it is up to us to prove that they have not taught in vain.

FACULTY

MR. CRIMMINS

This gentleman, (decorum at its best).
Is famous for his peppered wit and smile.
He brings the most obscure theories to light
And serves our science in amusing style.

MISS FOLEY

Fun to be with
We feel she's a friend
Whose smile we will miss
When our way will wend.

MR. POWDERLY

An incessant volley of jokes (and maps)
Makes history class a treat.
He'll scream when he reads this adjective
But we think Mr. Powderley's "sweet".

MISS SCHOMER

There's nothing like a sirloin steak
To really warm the heart,
We have a lovely recipe.
Come down and taste Miss Schomer's art

MISS O'NEIL

A lovely language, surely to be taught
By some one, lovely, capable, genteel.
Which is precisely why we're fortunate
To have our gracious mademoiselle O'neil

MR. DALY

He's putting cupid out of business,
Dividing students, pair by pair;
If you don't want your heart exposed in class,
Then, Romeo, - Juliet, take care.

MISS MCCANN

She introduces all the lore
of Virgil, Horace, Caesar,
Because she teaches kindly
We all do our best to please her

MISS BRENNAN

An inner peace, a tranquil charm
And friendliness upon her face,
We're fond of all the qualities
That give Miss Brennan grace.

MISS LAPPEN

Always believing in us,
Cheering us all the way.
She's famous for her friendliness,
Her firmness and fair play.

MISS THOMPSON

This little lady, very sweet is always wreathed in smiles,
She's magic with a needle and she knows the latest styles.

MISS BREWSTER

Appreciation of courtesy and calm
Because these qualities are hers also.
We like her cuz she's pleasant and because
She really likes us quite a lot, we know.

MISS LORDAN

Gentle nature, gentle manners too,
Qualities that we are sure to praise.
We like the calm, deliberate attitude,
Tempered by her quiet, winning ways.

MISS KELLEY

Her deep sincerity, her wit,
Gratitude within us stir;
She taught with faith in us
And we have utmost faith in her.

MISS CONNORS

Miss Connors must be stern and firm
Within her class it's true.
But she has a patient nature
And a sense of humor too.

MISS GALVIN

Magnetic dignity—and hers a mind that we can see resplendent in its light, Whose rays have touched on us within her realm,
Making our classes with her rich and bright.

MR. ZAPUSTAS

Here is the perfect pal
Who never lets us down.
We're proud that S.H.S.'s coach is the best liked man in town.

MRS. ATWOOD

Her lustre is not limited in art,
Her character displays a radiance too.
Of quality and wisdom and light
Of understanding shining through.

MR. LEHTINEN

In awe-inspiring things like higher math.
His agile mind proves he's quite a wit.
Alas! we fear we'll lose this teacher 'cuz
In driving class, his life's no longer his.

MR. THOMAS

"Impressive" is the word
That best describes his quiet air.
We know the courtly manner
And the talent burning there.

Well here we are in person, Mom and Dad. Perhaps you will hardly recognize us in our newly acquired dignity. Take a peek at the verses which lie beneath our pictures and don't forget to look at the various activities in which we participated. Glance carefully at the thoughtful glint in our eyes, and you shall come to one conclusion—we're all grown up!

LAST WILL

JUNE 8, 1951

BEQUEATHED BY: The decadent class of "51", last inhabitants of Stetson High School.

We, the graduating class of the local secondary school in the town of Randolph, Massachusetts, United States of North America, Earth, Western Hemisphere, Solar System, being of sound, even garrulous mind, do make and declare (a feat since we can neither read nor write) this to be our Last Will and Testament, and will go through the red tape of mentioning that we revoke all other Wills and Testaments heretofore made, (knowing very well we never wrote any others.)

To all scholars of the "new place" we bequeath in case the school is long in being complete, pails, shovels and plenty of mud.

To Mr. Gilgan—Bayer Aspirin in loving regret of the headaches we've caused.

To Mr. Thomas—A choice of earplugs or a talented kitchen orchestra.

To Mrs. Atwood—An armed truck, a tank and twenty-two to guard her art cabinet.

To consumers of the lunchroom delicacies—Mountains of mashed potato plus lumpy, bumpy, coldy, moldy, applesauce.

To French classes—Lily Pons complete with tonsils, and an acute loathing for the subjunctive mood.

To U. S. History classes—Map paper, laughs and antihistamine pills.

To Latin classes—Caesar—and an allegory to ablatives.

To the lab—All the mangy canines who play peek-a-boo with Mr. Crimmins through the window.

To budding artists—sable smocks and storm resistant berets to brave the frost in 28.

To English IV classes—Outlines of English Literature purchased from us at the nominal rate of $8000 and one head—removed from body.

To the Hockey Team—wooden legs.

To the Football Team—Lessons on "How to Make a Forward Pass."

To the Boys' Basketball Team—Year's supply of Gro-Pup.

To the Smokers' Club—Ashes.

To the Juniors—Miss Galvin and our class Treasury, such as it is.

To the Sophomores—A sweet sap named Phoebe plus a most attractive Virginian.

To the Freshmen—Four Years to a better vocabulary, and a leather bound copy of Charles Atlas' Success Course.

To Mr. Mahann and Mr. Holmes—a few literary gems, "Charms of Chintz" and "Ins and Outs of Interior Decorating." Also a jar of Jergens for "the hands you love to touch."

It is only natural, Mom and Dad, that you should think that our particular class is without a doubt, the cleverest which has ever marked on Stetson's walls. Confidentially, we think so too, and are therefore eager to embark upon promising futures. Armed with such self confidence, we are ready to make our mark upon the world. We think that it will be a successful one. don't you?

The following is a detailed report involving my position as a government census taker of the town of Randolph, Massachusetts in the year of our Lord 1960. My investigation has proved that these good people of Randolph are enjoying a life of contentment that is rarely found. A hard working group, it was rather difficult to seek them out and discover the source of their happiness. I found that it was hard work. Inspired by their industry, I set out early one morning to interview them. Approaching a large brick establishment across from the old high-school, I inquired of its owner. Jane Walsh and Tom P. Worth seemed to be co-partners in a successful pickling works. Frank Hansa, a promising financial wizard, managed the plant for them.

Leaving this building I advanced with vigor to the corner of North Main and Short Street only to find an ultra-modern barber shop doing a land-slide business. Donald Magnussen and Clifford McCormick were busily engrossed in shearing off the curly locks of a prominent politician by the name of Roy Mann. On closer scrutiny I recognized the pert young manicurist at his side to be Kay Chisholm. While I was jotting down this information, the blaring sound of a radio drifted out of the open door. A blast of trumpets presented a new day-time serial called "John and Marsha". The stars of the program turned out to be the former Shakesperian actor, Kent Smith and his new leading lady, Barbara Foote. A hoard of baby carriages disturbed my reverie. The pretty young matrons who were pushing the dear little ones, turned out to be acquaintances of mine also. Barbara Bassett, Mal Reed and Loty Skaleki told me of their marital bliss in glowing terms. At a sudden screech of brakes, the youthful mothers grasped their children to them and I looked up with alarm to see a familiar brunette grin at me from the seat of a brand new Buick. "Why it's Dor-Do-Doris Crowley." I shivered still very much frightened. A dare-devil of the highways, Miss Crowley had been a great success as a test driver for General Motors. I noticed three of her mechanics huddled in the back seat complete with crash helmets. They introduced themselves as being Ed Stewart, Joe McDonnell, and Len Cunningham who incidently achieved more notoriety for his famous last words, "Floor it, Tom".

Crossing the street I noticed, quite by accident, that the Randolph Theater was presenting its yearly array of local talent Harvey Cossaboom headed the bill and I ensconced myself in a third row seat and watched with horror as he cold-bloodedly prepared to saw his assistant, Margie "Fearless" Vaughn in half. The master of ceremonies, Mr. R. Emil Chipman, then presented the finale which included Miss Roberta Norman, singing her favorite arias from North Atlantic, and the impressario William Hatch, musical comedy star. Miss Chiquita Field, manager of the theater, together with its owner, Richard DiCarlo, presented the troupe with awards.

It was fortunate for me that an attractive lunchroom was conveniently located beside the theater. A happy tinkling of bells greeted my ears as I entered. Three waitresses immediately rushed to attend my needs. These pleasant females, I discovered were Ruth Schmidt, Mary McDonald, and Grace Cullen. It was not long before the pungent odor of pizza assailed my eager nose and I could not resist the temptation to discover the identity of this magnificent cook. Out in the kitchen, enveloped in an enormous apron, Agnes Hobson peeked over a huge mound of dough and laughed infectiously at me. After obtaining a few of Agnes' culinary hints, I expressed my desire of meeting the manager of this interesting establishment. No sooner had I uttered this request than Ann Lynch, the proprietress, dashed out to meet me. She related with pride four members of her staff. Charley Warner, and John Robison managed the restaurant for her in the evening (for Ann was presently engaged in taking night courses at Burdett.) She also employed Barbara Sproules and Evelyn McLeod as hostesses. In a far booth, I accidentally heard a heated argument. It seemed that Miss Patricia McEntee, president of the M.T.A., was threatening to sue Parker Richards for damages. My curiosity aroused I listened further and found to my surprise that Mr. Richards, a local "Hot Rod" enthusiast, had on a previous occasion been involved in a serious accident with an M.T.A. bus driven by Robert Dupras, a very careful driver. The two complainants had their lawyers with them, Mr. George Duran Mull and Mr. John J. O'Malley. The arguments seemed to be getting fiercer so I silently slipped out before the hostilities began.

In Mansfield's Paper Store, I bought a newspaper and was greatly surprised to see that Claire Mahoney was the crusading woman editor. She had an excellent staff of reporters at her command including Robert Needham, the eminent authority on political science and Patte Copeland the fashion expert. The local reporters were Roberta Hennessey and Catherine MacLellan. I found interesting articles on behalf of the candidacy of Helen Jaques for President. This much beloved stateswoman was fighting a bitter battle against her opponent the influential Secretary of the Navy Gael O'Riordan. The Jaques ticket included Pauline Tardanico for Vice-President. Jane Young was the publicity agent for their campaign. On glancing further through Miss Mahoney's paper I noticed that her most competent photographer, Robert Issac had been awarded a large sum of money for his realistic action shot of Cynthia Fletcher doing a "Jackknife Dive" at the Montello Pool. Mr. Issac had also won acclaim for his pictures of Richard Connaughton and

The rousing sounds of the Home-town Band were invigorating as I saw a large assemblage in front of Town Hall. Charles Connors, who was currently appearing at the Totem Pole, and had returned to Randolph to raise money for a benefit.

Margurite Holcombe, the well-known missionary was in the process of being equipped with funds to return to her mission school in China. The Pats, Boyd and Norton, wealthy philanthropists donated several hundred dollars while Edith Glover, Robert Vaughn and Leah Leotti, leaders of local organizations also donated large sums. The rally was sponsoring a large auction and Roberta Smith, the able auctioneer, was doing splendidly. After the sale the chairman of the proceedings, Doris Akerly called upon the delightful and talented soprano, Mary Lou Barry to favor us with a selection. Miss Barry was supported by the clever pianist, Peggy Lane.

The gathering quickly came to an end as Fire Chief Phillip Brewster tore out of the fire station in his new jet-powered engine in the direction of North Randolph. Fireman Tom Schneider and John Wooldridge were sitting on the back desperately grasping two red buckets of sand. Without delay, I jumped on my motor bike and followed them. The apparatus came to a halt in front of Fred Teed's Chicken Emporium, and the energetic men in red dashed in. It seemed that Fred had developed a new kind of hen that didn't lay eggs. The prize bird has disappeared and its owner was frantic. A posse of neighboring farmers had been, enlisted including Frank McDermott, Bobby Benson and Bob Bailey. The chase was on as the Game Warden Mildred Champ supervised. As I was about to leave this place of confusion I saw a lunch wagon pull up and I was quite surprised to see Joe Abers and Mary Pace, garbed in sparkling white coats prepared to serve the hunters steaming black coffee. I was tempted to indulge, but recalled that famous and timely quotation of those two famous philosophers, "Bob and Ray" which states "no time for that, Billy!" This made up my mind!

Driving along on my faithful scooter I noticed an attractive stand which advertised flower bargains. On entering I was pleased to see Marjorie Gunther, the florist, engaging in her spring flower display. Miss Gunther had wisely employed Joanne Bryant and Bernadette Gillis to model the decorative corsages. Barbara Kilcoyne had just bought three dozen carnations with which to illustrate her weekly lectures on Personality. Before departing from this fragrant establishment I interviewed Jane Gaynor, Phyllis Snow and Marjorie Sorrentino who were assisting Miss Gunther in arranging the displays.

At this time I deemed it auspicious to return a few books to the library. Since they were several months overdue I hastened with spectacular speed. The charming librarians were Gladys Toczko, Marie Gillis and Nancy Farrell. They had entirely remodeled the premises and I discussed their marvelous improvements with enthusiasm. On my exit from the building, I noticed three members of the Stetson faculty approaching the office of Doctor Hugh Lynch. Edna Ebbs, Ann Pemberton, Winton Washington and Dick Hibbett who with their respective heads of the Stetson High School Athletic Program, were visiting Doctor Lynch to obtain a goodly supply of vitamin pills for their powerful teams.

The sun is slowly sinking in the West. The street is deserted now as the happy citizens of Randolph are drifting homeward. My survey is complete. My job is done. These people of whom I write have not found spectacular success but they have found fulfillment. They have obtained the treasure of contentment. What more can they achieve?

Sincerely,

Rosemary Kathleen Woodman

Midwinter Sea

as published in the National High School Anthology of Poetry

She used to lift her skirts of ruffled foam
And chase the laughing children up this shore,
Slap their bare legs, then turn and slither back
To catch her breath and rise to run once more.

At night she gathered stars into her arms,
Sprinkled them where her hair and heaven meet,
Drawing young lovers with her mystic charms,
Reaching with childish glee to kiss their feet.

Time was when she was young and fiercely strong,
Swinging her sleek, green mane in haughty pride,
Praising herself in loud, exultant song,
Sweeping the sands with her triumphant glide.

Now, in the barren winter at this place,
I see her bitter, weak, and all alone,
Drawing gray lines across her tear-stained face,
Breaking the silence with her lonely moan.

Now folks, we would like to show you just how we spend those many hours of leisure time. Just as our classes, our activities are planned so that we learn something even as we play. We know that you realize the value of these programs for they teach us all the important art of getting along with each other in victory or defeat. They also give us an opportunity to give vent to that youthful enthusiasm and energy which might otherwise lay stagnant. Arn't we lucky to have such thoughtful guardians?

In conclusion dear parents, we now present the staff which compiled this book. They have had but one goal in mind and that was to bring you pleasure. It is true that there were many days of uncertainties and disappointments, but their reward is eminent. For in this world of chaos, if they have succeeded in causing you to forget your troubles for one brief moment, wherein perhaps you smiled, then it was well worth their humble efforts.

Autographs

We students at Stetson High School are now joining our voices in unison in order to direct a large and sincere "thank you" to those business enterprises of Randolph, who assisted us in financing our "Oracle". They did it not because of any profit that they might receive, but rather they were prompted by one simple motive—"to help us." And that they did, believe us. To each and every school activity, they gave of what they had with friendly co-operation. Their doors are never closed to us when we turn to them for help and, for that, we thank them one and all.
